THREE BUSINESSES IN ONE

EXPO offers three businesses under one roof: a store for homeowners and trade customers, a design center and a construction company. From start to finish, EXPO offers expert resources to coordinate and complete a single project or a total remodel.

- As a store, EXPO carries the most innovative products for home decorating and remodeling. Each of EXPO's 10 showrooms features unique lifestyle vignettes so that customers can walk from one to the other, visualizing full-room scenes while pulling all of the elements of an interior design project together. Within each of these showrooms, shoppers will find products from topname brands with prices that range from mid-level to extravagant.
- As a design center, EXPO offers expert advice as well as professional design services for fullscale projects. Professionals are at the leading edge of today's decorating trends, and many hold ASD and CKD/CBD certifications. Services include one-on-one client assistance as well as inhome consultation and measuring. Associates also can work directly with a customer's interior designer, general contractor or builder.
- As a construction company, EXPO provides complete project management and installation services. Qualified, licensed and insured trade professionals are available for complete turnkey home renovations.

TRADE SERVICES OFFICE

Nearly every EXPO market offers at least one Trade Services Office for builders, remodelers, designers and architects. The office includes a dedicated staff to assist trade professionals in the store, as well as sales representatives who can meet at the job site. EXPO provides various services that assist both trade professionals and their clients in product selection and design.

A Primer on Mobile Marketing

June 23, 2005

Compiled by Howard H. Zarob, Vice President, Ketchum Midwest Corporate Practice

Professionals within any given industry – law, medicine, and yes, public relations – have their own language, a way of describing what they do. For every doctor's Code Blue EMT, we have our 1700 (radio news releases), 1816 (public service announcements) and 4075 (mobile media team).

But what happens when technology, language and nomenclature change? Do we always know what we mean, even in our own industry? For a fascinating blog on this subject, click here. In developing Ketchum Personalized Media, we realized the answer was, "Probably not." So, here's some information on an emerging communication tool known as "mobile marketing."

Making Decisions on Your Health Plan

According to leading financial expert and author, Neale Godfrey, 85% of women make their financial decisions in times of crisis. Significant life changes like a separation or divorce typically bring about a period of personal and financial reassessment. Protecting your health insurance is an important part of any financial plan.

All too often, divorce can result in the loss of health insurance. Because women more frequently depend on their spouses for coverage, they are usually at a higher risk for losing health insurance. In times of transition, reviewing your coverage needs is essential. According to a Plan for Your Health survey of women ages 24-44, recently separated, divorced or widowed women actually spent less time reviewing their health plan options than other women. Only 8% of women experiencing this type of life change in the past year said they spent two or more hours researching health plans.

Here are some tips on ways to consider your choices:

- Whether or not you choose to continue on your ex-spouse's plan, it is important to have medical coverage in place quickly, without interruption.
- Many divorced parents list their children as dependents on each individual plan, one plan serving as "primary" and the other as "secondary." Primary pays the cost of the claims first; secondary takes care of the remaining costs.
 - If your children are covered through both of your group plans (not always the best idea because of the double cost), primary coverage is through the spouse with the earliest birthday, or a group plan takes precedence over an individual plan.
 - Getting a Qualified Medical Child Support Order can help you deal directly with the insurance plan for claims instead of through your spouse.
